What is Christmas About?

Traditionally, it's supposed to be a celebration of the birth of Jesus Christ. Historically, its 'winter festival'.

The first harbingers of Christmas arrive in October when jarring sales and decorations follow fast on the heels of summer. But by December, Christmas's true heralds are out: twinkling lights lining streets, the smell of balsam and spice cookies wafting through the house and visits from friends and relatives. The season's spirit drives people to the mall, to the kitchen, to midnight mass and to festive gatherings.

Christmas is also a fascinating miscellany of traditions: one that combines pre-Christian pagan rituals with modern traditions. Every family that celebrates Christmas has its own customs--- some surprisingly universal, others entirely unique, but all comfortably familiar in their seeming antiquity.

The idea of Christmas no matter who you are or what your personal belief system may be... is a time of celebration for the closing of a year and a new beginning in the year to come. It is a celebration of the new and old, life and death, friends and family, sacrifices and blessings.

Cherish those who surround you and give remembrance of those who have passed.

Happy Holidays, Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!!!!

Quote of the Month

Once again we find ourselves enmeshed in the Holiday Season, that very special time of year when we join with our loved ones in sharing centuries-old traditions such as trying to find a parking space at the mall. We traditionally do this in my family by driving around the parking lot until we see a shopper emerge from the mall, then we follow her, in very much the same spirit as the Three Wise Men, who 2,000 years ago followed a star, week after week, until it led them to a parking space.
